

Indigenous employment a key focus

A national leader in the employment of Indigenous staff in the aged care sector

Blue Care is one of Australia's leading providers of community health and residential aged care. We support the elderly; people with a disability; and others in need in the community to remain independent for as long as possible.

These services are provided in 260 centres across Queensland from Thursday Island in the north to across the border in the Tweed in the south and west to Mount Isa, Longreach and Cunnamulla.

Our Indigenous Employment Program aims to improve access by Indigenous people to health care and to increase the number of Indigenous people in the aged care industry workforce.

We have increased our Indigenous workforce from eight to 160 in 18 months, employing Indigenous workers in areas such as nursing, allied health, personal care, business support, horticulture, hospitality and carpentry.

For more information please visit our website www.bluecare.org.au

The Blue Care Indigenous Employment Program is in partnership with Department of Education Employment and Workplace Relation.

Blue Care acknowledges service funding support from Australian and Queensland Governments.

